The Civilization of the Goddess
Eden and the Fall - Matthew Buttsworth 1999

Bull Vaulter - Barbara Tieken 2010-12-21 Bull Vaulter is an absorbing novel set in 2100 B.C.E. that interweaves adventure, passion, love, and wisdom. Join Alena, Bull Vaulter from Keft, as she journeys to the Peloponnesus, meets the Kurgan warrior, Jahal, and develops the special talents bestowed upon her by the Goddess as she embarks on an exhilarating journey to fulfill her fated destiny.

Minoan Signs - GJK Campbell-Dunn 2014-06-19 The Minoan Linear Signs have now been explained as Niger-Congo. And some twenty five full words have been related to Fula. Problematic words of Greek have also been given tentative African etymologies. A new African language, four thousand years old, has come to light in the Linear A documents. So we claim a decipherment, or at least the beginnings of a decipherment. Only time will give us a full solution. But we can say that the “unknown language” is no longer unknown. It is African.

Crete - Adrian Edwards 1998 Lists and annotates some 380 books, journal articles, conference papers, and other sources of information on Crete, focusing on both history and contemporary life. Most works described are in English, with a few in other languages. Only material published since the mid-19th century has been included, with a heavy bias towards the late 20th century. The Villa Ariadne - Dilys Powell 2015-12-11 The Villa Ariadne was built at Knossos, Crete, by Sir Arthur Evans soon after he discovered the Minoan palace, when the site was his own private property. The villa became home, in turn, to John Pendlebury, who used it as a base for his excavations of Crete and his explorations of the island after the Presidency’s death of the把手 of excavating Greek paratroopers, the Villa Ariadne was taken over by General Karl Kreipe, who was being chased by Patrick Leigh Fermor and marched across the island to captivity, an episode immortalized in the film Ill Met by Moonlight. Dilys Powell, who knew Crete and the Villa Ariadne for over 40 years, presents her memories of Evans and Pendlebury together with recollections of the Cretan people. Her classic account, first published in 1973, is once again a background and a portrait of a mythical island which captured her heart. It should appeal to all those who have heard her later for Enmore and especially Crete.
